

Paving of Wolf Rd. Completed at Mokena

At last Mokena has a paved road! After years of fighting and effort on the part of a few public spirited citizens the community has finally been awarded with a hard road thru the village. The last batch of concrete was poured on the Wolf road in the village crossing Front street Monday noon. The Wolf road is now paved from the Cook and Will County line north of Mokena straight thru to the Hickory creek bridge south of Mokena. From the bridge to the Lincoln highway right of way has to be secured before the Wolf road paving can be connected up with the Lincoln highway.

The newly paved portion of Wolf road will not be open for traffic for at least twenty-one days. The pavement is covered with straw.

The Thompson-Powers Construction Company are moving their road building machinery to Joliet.

This Young Lady Finds Lockport a Long Walk

Judge Sherman S. Knox of Orland Park heard a timid rap on his door at 1 a. m. Monday and upon opening the door saw a young girl standing there. The first thing she said was "I'm walking home. How far is it to Blue Island?" Judge Knox asked her to come in. Upon further questioning the girl said her name was Florence Berjarski of West Pullman. She had gone for an auto ride with a young fellow Sunday afternoon and when she resisted his advances, he threw her out of the car on Archer road near Lockport and she walked from there on 143rd street to Orland Park. Mrs. Knox prevailed upon the judge to take the girl home. Judge Knox accompanied by Mrs. Knox, took the girl to the address she gave in West Pullman.

Tinley M. E. Pastor Tells of Vandalism

On Halloween night two windows in the Tinley Park Methodist church were completely demolished. So shattered were they that it was necessary to install complete window sashes and glasses to repair the damage. The total cost of repairs will likely run to more than $12.

It is obvious that the broken windows are a result of a prank on the part of some Tinley Park boys. It is well known that before a boy reaches maturity he must experience a boyhood full of activity and fun, but when that fun begins to take effect on other people's property, and particularly against God's church, it should come to an end.

The final result of this prank reaches much deeper into the life of this community than merely paying out a few dollars to fix a couple of windows. It shows clearly that certain youngsters in Tinley Park are growing up to maturity without American ideas of citizenship and manhood. It shows clearly that a more thorough training on the part of parents of certain Tinley Park youths is necessary.

This malfeasance, which was probably committed as a cute "stunt" on the part of the perpetrator, has gone unpunished, and the guilty party will most likely never be exposed.

Nevertheless, in order that these so-called "harmless pranks" of Hellow'en may not grow gradually into offenses of far greater consequence, it behooves Tinley Park parents and citizens to instill into the lives of their younger generation a greater love for the welfare of the community and for the respect of the rights of others.

Pastor of Tinley Park M. E. church

Kidnappers Show Themselves on Matteson Farm

Matteson and Monee which have been the scene of recent bank robberies continued in the limelight during the past week because of attempted kidnappings.

The first news of trouble at Matteson was received last week through a telephone call from Dettmering's gas station at Lincoln Highway and Cicero Avenue. Deputy Fleming of the county police at Homewood who answered the call, found that telephone wires leading to the home of Fred Krumweide had been cut and the farmer himself threatened by four men who had been scared away by a truck driving into the farm yard. The license number of their car was found to belong to a car stolen from Creighton Voight of 8155 Maryland avenue, Chicago, in September. A year ago this month Mr. Krumweide's home was entered and $2,000 taken.

At the same time four men were observed driving around the homes of Henry Arnold and his brother Fred, near Monee. Telephone wires were cut and threatening messages received. Calls for police protection were unanswered for a week. Tuesday night two deputies were assigned from Joliet to guard the houses after the Cook County police were found to be unavailable. Sergeant John Orgel, of Midlothian, assisted in mapping plans for the capture of the four men who are believed to be the same in both cases.

Both Matteson and Monee are only a short drive down Crawford Ave., from Midlothian.

TINLEY LIONS START DRIVE TO AID NEEDY

The Tinley Park Lions Club at a meeting held Monday night of this week took up the matter of aiding families in Tinley Park and adjoining cities who have been hard hit by the unemployment depression. The Lions club has appointed the following committee to take charge of a drive to start at once to raise a supply of food, clothes and money:

A. O. Foskett, chairman; John F. Boyer, Paul Rauff, Anthony Kososki and E. Snyder.

Mr. Foskett has issued an appeal asking the aid of individuals and organizations of Tinley Park to donate clothing, food and money. All such donations can be left with Mr. Kososki, the Rock Island station agent at Tinley Park. It is hoped that this note worthy appeal for the relief of the needed and will be liberally answered by those of more fortunate circumstances.

The drive is on right now and donations can be made now if so desired.

A dainty luncheon was served by the hostess. The Club sends this little poem in memory of Mrs. Schultz's mother:

Days and weeks have passed us by,
And months and years without a sigh;
But mother's hands have done the work,
And smiled and laughed at those who shirk.

But time has come for her great soul
To rest beside the loveliest shore;
The water that she often said,
Would be company for the dead.

But, Oh! a mother if one could say
Millions, millions if we could pay;
To have her back to sing again,
That hymn she loved, that made us grin.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. They make a runaway marriage. Briceland is furious, but helpless, as Ernestine is of age. Loring Hamilton, lawyer, wins Lillian's consent to be his wife. Will and Ernestine begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. John Poole, Will's best friend, gives a birthday party for Ernestine at Ruby Pastano's resort. Pastano irritates Ernestine by criticizing Will for bringing her to such a place. Will and Ernestine have their first quarrel. Conscious of approaching motherhood, Ernestine opens a savings account. Will's father dies suddenly.

He kissed her again, and they said goodby. The conversation had washed away a little of her resentment and made her feel better. She had a strong desire to cling to her own family, opposed by the resolution she had taken to harden her heart against them all. She thought of mamma and Lillian and Loring, come in Loring's coupe, standing quiet and in a little tight knot at the funeral. She had taken her own stand by Will and Mrs. Schluss, and Mr. and Mrs. Pryor.

The day after the funeral when Ernestine, with one of Mrs. Todd's aprons pinned over an old silk dress, was experimenting with a broom, Mr. Pastano came, and with him a huge old lady with slow black eyes and a face so round and kind that Ernestine's heart went out to her.

Mr. Pastano had brought some potted plants, which seemed fresh and beautiful after the scent of decay that had come with the funeral sets.

"These are for Willie's mamma," Madame Pastano said haltingly. "We come to make consolation call—to bring you friendship. As the plants grow, so grows the new soul, in Heaven."

Ernestine yielded to impulse, was enfolded on the soft and luxurious bosom of Madame Pastano and kissed her smooth cheek. How strange that all of her haughty resentment was gone, that she actually liked Ruby Pastano, with his slow thick voice and his mottled dark eyes.

"When Willie's mamma is better, you will come to visit us?" the old lady asked, and Ernestine called her husband Willie for days afterward. She promised to come.

Will was worried about money, and Ernestine tried to spend as little as possible. Mr. Todd's lodge insurance had paid for his funeral and left a small balance, which was soon eaten up by the heavy expenses of the mother's illness. Will asked for a raise and got five dollars. At length he was forced to borrow from Mr. Poole, although Ernestine told him she could get money from her father.

"Money!" he burst out passionately. "I don't want any Briceland money! We wanted something real from them. Money's all they have."

"You'll have to increase your earnings, Will."

"It takes time. And I intend to do it on my own job, not in your father's office. Your folks must understand that."

"Lillian says beggars can't choose," she said.

"This beggar chooses," he warned her.

Will's mother began to mend a little, the third or fourth week, although she was desperately ill. One day she asked Ernestine how they were managing, and Ernestine confessed that they had had to borrow.

"The Troy street house is in my name," said Mrs. Todd. "Tell Will the deed and all are in his father's box—tell him to have some real estate office sell it. I'll sign the deed—it will be more than enough for my illness."

"But, mother, when you are better, you will need your money."

"I'll not be better. And I'd like to have the nurse all the time now."

So the house was sold, and the few thousand dollars they got for it certainly made a remarkable difference. The doctor brought them a resident nurse, Ernestine and Will agreed that they should spend Mrs. Todd's money only for the expense of her illness.

On the day that Lillian was married Mrs. Todd was able to sit up, and Will consented to go to the wedding. The church was filled with flowers—the bridesmaids made a rainbow—Ernestine had pleaded the excuse of mourning for taking no part in the ceremony. The pews were filled with old famillar faces—the ushers were young men Ernestine and Lillian had known always. Everything was very beautiful and formal, and Ernestine realized that mamma would have liked such a wedding for her.

She was glad afterward, that she had gone, for the weeks and months just passed had been so hard for her that the beauty of her own romance had become a little dimmed. But when she heard the marriage ceremony again, when she stood by Will and watched her sister marry Loring Hamilton, she remembered every word and every kiss of her own marriage day—its storms and turmoil, and she looked at Will, at his clear strong face, at his lean bony body in the shabby suit, at the big square hands resting on his knees, and the richness of her love for him welled up in her like a great tide that would and must carry everything before it.

CHAPTER VII

The Baby for Passenger

Lillian was in Europe. Mamma and papa and grandmother had gone to Langley lake for the month of August. Ernestine entered into a period of waiting, of passing through days of unreality and nights of patient endurance. Sometimes, waking after she had slept, she looked about the walls of the little room with a feeling of enormous surprise. Was this really she, Ernestine Briceland, in this dim room, with the curtains pinned back to admit any vagrant breeze, listening with her heart suddenly quick in the still night for her husband's footsteps?

Mr. Poole came often to visit them. Ernestine began to look for him for late Sunday breakfast. And the Pastanos were kindness itself. Their shining car, with the swart grinning chauffeur, was often at the door.

One day as Ernestine sat reading aloud, Will's mother laid a swollen, creased hand out over the book, and Ernestine, looking up at her, smiled quickly and kissed her.

"What is it, mother?" They talked a little about the coming baby, and the plans Ernestine and Will had made.

"It is hard for your mother," said Mrs. Todd, with a smile. "I think perhaps it is as great a mistake to be stiff-necked about favors as it is to be greedy."

"Perhaps," admitted Ernestine. "It is hard to be exactly balanced. One must choose a direction in which to lean."

They fell into a friendly silence. After a little, Will's mother pressed Ernestine's hand.

"About Will—" she said and hesitated, and Ernestine's heart beat a little faster.

"Be patient with him. He hasn't found himself yet. But he will. You are more mature than Will. Children will increase the distance between your wisdom and his childishness. Just love him. He'll come home."

Ernestine knew no answer, but the words fell into her heart as though there were more significance to them than their stereotyped importance. For an hour or more they sat in silence, Ernestine dreaming of Mrs. Todd remembering Will!

Mrs. Todd lived just long enough to see her grandson and to kiss his poppy silk cheek. Will laid him in the hollow of her arms, but after a moment, with a word of entreaty, she asked him to take the baby away. He did

Abundant Proof That Animals Change Color

Though many an animal in the Arctic regions will change its coat to white for the winter months, there are few animals who turn gray, as human beings do, from old age. Animals are, however, susceptible to fright and shock, and this may cause their hair or fur to change to white, just as in the case of human beings. Domestic pets are naturally more susceptible to this than animals who are used to tending for themselves in the wild. The black coat of a dog will sometimes turn practically white if the dog has a fit or falls victim to a very bad bout of distemper. Cats are not immune from shock. Horses' coats often seem to change quite appreciably in color, but this may be only a matter of clipping. A horse that has been turned out for some time and then brought in to be clipped will become a light fawn color after the operation, when before it he seemed a dark chestnut. You wouldn't know he was the same horse!

so and, calling the nurse to his mother who seemed to be swooning, he took the little one back to Ernestine.

And so the parlor of the little house was a bower for death. The gray coffin, the room filled with flowers, the worn-out shell of the woman Ernestine had understood so little.

Will accepted his mother's death with more philosophy than Ernestine had expected of him. The long waiting, the clinging, had been harder for him than the final separation. Besides, the new little life cuddled against Ernestine's heart was so much more than any loss—it was such an appropriate compensation.

The baby had finally established Ernestine among her new neighbors. Slowly but surely they had come to respect her, and now, with Peter in her arms, with her house clean and by her own efforts, she found Mrs. Schluss and Mrs. Pryor and others showing her real affection, which she appreciated and respected in full. Ernestine felt that all sacrifice was justified, and they entered into a new phase of life, in their own small home, Will at the oars, Ernestine at the helm, and the baby for passenger.

It was harder to maintain the high level of contentment after Lillian returned from Europe and established herself in her new home on the road, out near Loyola. Will went across with Ernestine one noon shortly after their return. Mamma was there. Lillian was charming to Will, kissing him when she greeted Ernestine and the baby and flattering him skillfully.

After Will had left for the Sun the three women followed one another about the house, passed the baby back and forth between them, and talked, talked, talked, all at the same time, all listening and talking, all intent on catching up the old intimacy. It was charming. Ernestine could not remember when she had spent such a happy afternoon. There was no one like mamma—no one!

"I've got to go, because papa is bringing a new stone-merger man home with him for dinner. I am going to put rock powder in the coffee!" Mamma kissed them all goodbye, with tears in her eyes.

Ernestine looked at Lillian and realized with a shock how changed she was in the six months since her marriage. She was satisfied with her lot and herself. There was almost danger—a challenge to fate in her complacency. She was gentle and kind to Ernestine, but subtly patronizing. It was especially noticeable since mamma had gone, for mamma kept Lillian in check.

But if Lillian was changed, Loring was startlingly so. He seemed to Ernestine bigger, handsomer. His blond strength was now set in a robust vitality which was very different from Will's volatile excitability. He kissed Ernestine affectionately, told her she looked well and admired the baby.

Mamma had trained a maid for Lillian, and she served in silent competence an excellent dinner, but the bright vivacity of the afternoon was gone. The interwoven volubility of the three women, their constant interruption of one another, their exclamations and cries of astonishment or sympathy, now disappeared, and Loring talked and the two girls listened.

He assumed Ernestine knew all about their European journey. Over there, he said, he had got a new slant on things. It was a good thing for a man to get away from his desk for a while. Now he had decided to forego the idea of the bench and go in for crime.

They laughed and he twinkled at them, but all the same, he insisted, he meant it.

"The judiciary qualities are excellent, but not remunerative—unless one becomes a corrupt judge, from which fate Heaven deliver me! The criminal lawyer is the important lawyer of today. He is the man with power in the courts. It will be a new kind of litigation for our office, but if I can get the business I can handle it. I went to see that Greek chap—Pastano—this afternoon, and recalled to him our acquaintanceship and our mutual friends. He remembered me perfectly and asked about you. He seems much interested in you and Will. He's the man to see, Tom Kelly told me, at the City hall. He has the say about all that Clark street colony. There's no end of money there and I'm going to dig some of it out for us."

Ernestine's face was flushed. She could not deny her anger.

"But it seems inconsistent to me," she said quickly, "for you to take advantage of his friendship for Will when you disapprove so of our knowing him. I don't understand."

Things That Are Nice for Christmas Gifts

Pretty Flower Pot Covers

Be sure to put this item down on your Christmas shopping list—flower-pot covers. They are a "discovery" when it comes to something pretty and useful "to give" that does not "cost much." They sure will be welcomed by the housewife when 't's time to bring the plants in the house for the winter." Of the three types shown here, the one to the left is of gold lace paper. Below is a folding type made of lemonade straws dyed in gay reds, greens and blues, while the cover on the pot at the top is woven of willow like a basket.

Scenic Beauty in Art Plaques

For those who appreciate the finer things, yet must "count the pennies" in Christmas giving, the problem is happily solved in the exquisitely artistic plaques which abound in the holiday displays this season. Many of these are of rare scenic beauty as will be seen by the two lovely types pictured. The one at the top is called "The Half-Way Change," and the other "The Roadside Mill." Being of plaster of paris done in relief work with old ivory finish, these bits of art are most inexpensive. Other subjects in this series of four are "A New England Home" and "Edinburgh Coach."

New-Type Laundry Bag

Here's a laundry bag with "latest improvements." Note that it suspends from a dress hanger, has its opening at the side instead of the top and best of all, from the standpoint of convenience, it buttons across the bottom. What more can one ask of a laundry bag which expects to have a "Merry Christmas" tag pinned upon it, except of course that it be made of "scrumptious" cretonne since it is going to be "a present" for somebody dear.

Christmas Gift De Luxe

Of all decorative and exquisite wares shown in the gift shops this season, there is none handsomer than that of ebony black glass with a designful patterning done in sterling silver inlay. A choice little piece, a bon-bon dish, perhaps, or shapely vase, is sure to be appreciated by the recipient, while an elaborate console set as pictured is a Christmas gift de luxe.

To be a Healthy Woman watch your Bowels!

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients. It doesn't sicken or weaken you. No restrictions of habit or diet are necessary while taking it. But its action is thorough. It carries off the sour bile and poisonous waste. It does everything you want it to do. It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all druggists keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

Control Temper

Do you lose your temper easily? When you do, are you usually ashamed later that you allowed another person or some untoward incident to so arouse you? That is the experience of most of us, says Dr. Alfred Adler, the psychiatrist, who is quoted in the Golden Book Magazine. "We can only interpret a bad temper as a sign of an inferiority complex," he says.

BERET TO MATCH SUIT FAVORED; "WEIGHTLESS" WOOLENS APPEAL

THE idea of the beret made of the cloth of the dress, blouse, suit or ensemble which it tops has completely captured the fancy of fashion's followers. During the daytime hours, about town at the smart restaurants, in fact most everywhere that one sees a chic tailor made of some one or other of the new smart novelty woolen weaves, it is almost sure to be accompanied with a jaunty close-fitting headpiece which has been conjured of the very selfsame material.

Of course so smart a mode finds itself exploited in the environs of Holwe in our day are privileged to behold. So sheer, so colorful, so unusual, so everything to be desired for smart frocks such as can go most anywhere and be admired for their chic. No wise-to-style woman can afford to pass them lightly by.

When is the proper time of the day to wear the frock made of some one or other of the new lightweight woolen weaves? Echo answers, morning, noon or afternoon, in fact any time between dawn and when the lights are on, and being so exquisitely dainty, some of the very sheer light woollens lywood, the "Paris of America." Which accounts for the fact that Margaret Adams, recently arrived from Broadway, chose to be garbed in a fetching suit-plus-beret costume when she posed for her picture which is herewith reproduced. The entire outfit is in gray, from tip to toe. As a matter of information we might say that gray is a color gaining steadily in favor. True, as yet, it is being worn by a select few only. However an increasing demand is reported for gray novelty woollens and also gray furs.

One notes this trend to gray mixtures in the newer stripes, checks and plaids now so popular for sports and about-town suits. Especially is gray allied with black and white. "They say" that even the new silk prints for spring show a predilection for gray tones—but we look too far into the future. As to the immediate moment, choose rough mannish woolen, trim it in long-haired gray fur or smooth caracul and chic is the word.

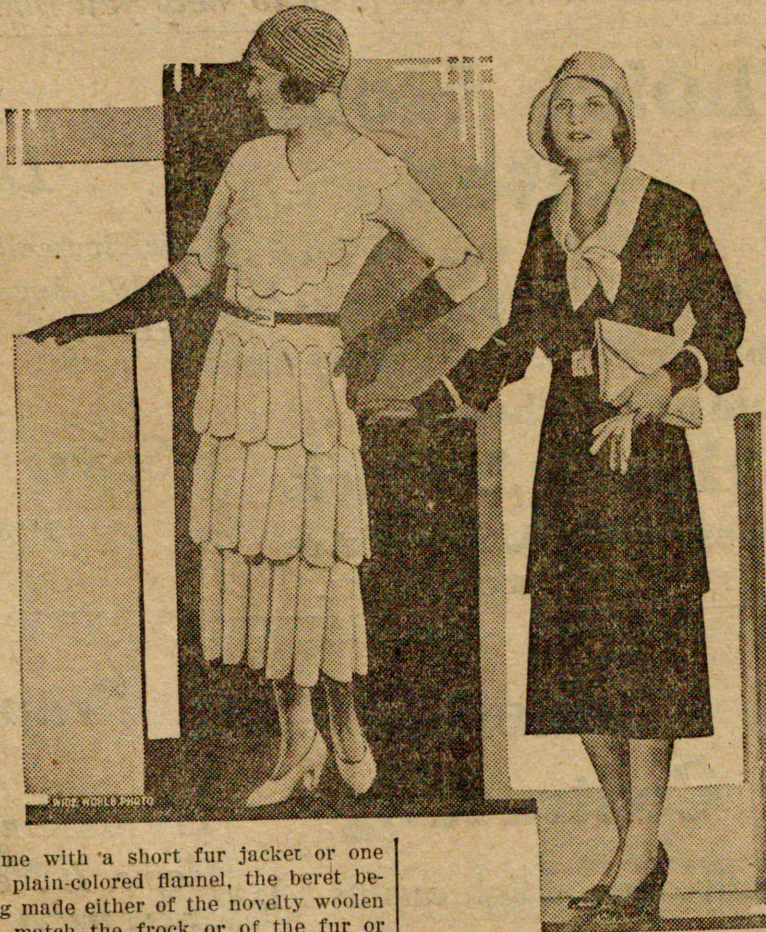

It has grown to be quite the smart thing to wear a dress of colorful and designful (meaning striking plaids or checks or stripes) weave, topping the even find themselves hobnobbing with satins and silks, chiffons and velvets at dinner parties and the dance.

The models pictured below are of as near weightless woollens as weaves can be. They are just such as the well dressed woman will love to wear during her round of rather informal daytime events. The genteel-looking frock to the right is of chifon vilma worsted in black and white. An interesting item about this dress is that it actually weighs little more than a pound.

For the novel Paris gown to the left in this illustration Suzanne Talbot uses sheer pink woolen. Tiers of scalloped box-pleating form a most attractive skirt, the scallops being repeated on the deep oval collar and on the cuffs which finish the modish elbow sleeves. The patent leather belt and the long suede gloves give the contrasting note of black which the French designer seldom omits. The small chenille hat in black and pink is a charming exponent of the latest, or shall we say the earliest, in winter millinery.

So light and sheer are some of the new wool crepes; it is the proud assertion of the weaver that they can same with a short fur jacket or one of plain-colored flannel, the beret being made either of the novelty woolen to match the frock or of the fur or flannel to match the modish belted-in jacket.

Light Woollens in Favor.

Hear, hear, hear! All women interested in what's smartest for daytime frocks. 'Tis the new perfectly charming weightless woolen weaves to which fashion would call your attention.

Surely this is a season of triumph for fine fabrics woven of fine woolen. Never such were known in days of yore as the fairylike woollens which be drawn through a ring. It is possible to secure these diaphanous wool textures in lovely light tones especially in pale blue which is a favorite color this year for gowns of more or less formal character. However the most insistent call is for black or dark rich tones.

Seek Holy Relics in

Turkish Capital City

A Twentieth-century quest of the Holy Grail and the Cross of Calvary is under way in Constantinople. This quest is bound up with the efforts of a Danish archeologist, Carl Vett, of Copenhagen, to preserve what is probably the oldest monument in the world to symbolize religious tolerance. The monument, dating from 326 A. D., is the column of Constantine, founder of Constantinople, which still stands at the corner of a busy thoroughfare. The cross on which Christ was crucified, brought from Golgotha by Constantine's mother, St. Helena of York, was placed, according to ancient authorities, within the base of this column, side by side with the Palladium of old Rome. More shadowy tradition holds that the relics placed within the column included the Holy Grail as well as twelve baskets containing crumbs from the 5,000 loaves of the Biblical miracle and the adze with which Noah built the ark. The statue, the inscriptions and the three topmost drums of the column were knocked down by an earthquake almost 1,000 years ago. Seven drums of porphyry still stand erect, but the lower drums and the marble base were buttressed with sandstone 200 years ago by the Turks to prevent the falling of the column.

Elections in Germany

Article 22 of the constitution of the German republic states that all national elections must be held on Sundays or public holidays. This provision enables the largest number of voters to take part in the elections and causes the least interruption of business. This practice is not new. National elections in Germany were held on Sundays and holidays under the imperial regime.

School Board Meets; Considers Bond Issue

The school board of district 143 met at the Len Small school Wednesday evening to consider a bond issue to complete the Midlothian schools. Bids from five bond houses have been received.

After deliberation it was decided to give the contract for placing the new bond issue to Kent, Grace Company of Chicago whose bid was the most favorable to the taxpayers.

It was also decided to hold mass-meetings throughout the school district within the next twenty days at which the bond issue will be discussed and explained. These meetings will give the voters an opportunity to learn all details that are necessary for unbiased voting.

The bond issue was necessitated by a decision of the Illinois Supreme Court which declared that school board had no right to increase the school tax. It had previously been decided by the township school officials to increase the tax by one and a half percent. When this was found illegal a bond issue was chosen as the means of raising the money.

Some time ago the residence voted an extra 1 1/2 per cent levy to take care of this expense, but it has now been learned that the supreme court has thrown out this levy. Then the tax levy was cut 40 per cent on account of the increased valuations. To add to the complexities of the situation Posen has filed a petition to withdraw from the district.

So the members believe that a bond issue will be necessary to complete the new school. Although it was promised in last week's issue to present both sides of the Posen-Midlothian argument, we have since decided that until the matter comes up again to leave it rest, believing it best to "let sleeping dogs lie" and not invite any more disputes than is necessary.

This week Clare Moore, secretary of the board, notified the parents of six children that unless their children mended their ways this week that the children would be dropped from school.

Don't Overlook

These Features in This Issue

Two pocketbooks, containing CASH, have been found. Read the want ads for details.

Would your children like free movie tickets? Have them try their skill at coloring the picture found elsewhere in this issue.

Want an electric clock free? In one of the ads you will find the way to earn one.

St. Christopher's Given

Flag Pole by Legion

Sunday morning a group of Legion men and Holy Name society members carried a long iron flagpole out of Clarke-Hulett's, down 147th st. to the parochial school, followed by the tow truck and the Postuma truck. A few minutes later the pole was up, Al Clifton shimmied up the pole to cut the cable and a 5 x 8 ft. flag floated over the grounds.

The pole was presented to St. Christopher's by Midlothian Post 691 of the American Legion.

The Boy Scouts have undertaken to raise and lower the flags at the schools each day.

Dr. R. H. Carmichael

Opens Office Here

Dr. Robert H. Carmichael, who took over the practice of Dr. Eckstadt in Tinley Park, has opened offices in the Hill bldg., as a general medical practitioner. His residence is in Tinley Park and he is a member of the Lions Club there.

Dr. Carmichael is a graduate of the Detroit College of Medicine and served as intern at the Detroit Emergency hospital. After practicing in Detroit, he entered the service of the Pennsylvania railroad as medical examiner and surgeon, staying in the employ of the system for ten years.

It is one of his hobbies to play the accordion; so when your organization wants someone to donate the music, don't forget to call on him.

Our Invitation

This week THE MIDLOTHIAN MESSENGER and the TINLEY PARK TIMES invites Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goebel of Tinley Park to be their guests at the Lyric Theatre, Blue Island.

Last week the passes were given to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Strand of Crestwood.

On account of Thanksgiving coming on Thursday, Nov. 27th, all ads. and newsmatter for the issue of this paper for that week must be in no later than Monday night in order to appear in our issue of Thanksgiving week. Strict adherence to this request will be greatly appreciated by the editor.

The Orland Park Post of the American Legion have received their charter which is No. 526. The membership list is showing a steady increase and it is the hope of the sponsors of the Post to see a membership of at least forty.

JUDGE TALKS TO P. T. A.

Judge Matthew Hardigan, as a Legion speaker, gave a very interesting talk to the P. T. A., Monday evening on the four fundamentals of American citizenship, (1) the home, (2) the school, (3) religion, [4] loyalty to the flag.

Bremen Presents Candidates for Hall of Fame

Bremen constables have had a fairly easy life; they have seldom had to track down bank robbers or shoot it out with hi-jackers. Yet emergencies arise in even the most peaceful communities and the officers must respond to the call of duty.

Charles Debring, Bremen constable residing in Oak Forest, this week became the township's candidate for the hall of fame when Justice of the Peace Clarence Goessel of Tinley Park handed him a search warrant, which read, in part, as follows:

"Edwin Urbanski and John Doe, 160th and Central ave., did unlawfully take and still have in their possession, ONE SKUNK, in violation of the game and fish codes of Illinois. We therefore command you to search, in the day time, the above described premises and to bring the above described goods and chattels and the person in whose possession the same was found, before me, at my office at 159th and Kedzie ave., Markham, Ill."

Happily for all concerned, the skunk could not be located, so H. W. Elmore will be able to use his real estate office the rest of the year.

"And a Good Time Was Had by All" - - - Says We

Believe it was Abe Lincoln who said, "In Unity There is Strength."

Had it been possible for Abe to have returned to our midst and attended the Legion-Camp Fire Girls dance held at Goodfellowship Hall Saturday night, November 8th, he would have added the following to his memorable utterance: "In Unity lies Success!" Because, everyone who attended this function will agree that it was a success, and every one who did not attend now wish they did. Moral! Make it a point to attend our next function. We'll give you plenty of notice. Incidentally, Editor Andrews' hat was guarded so well that he wore it home and revised his opinion of Legionnaires with the same size head as his.

Legion Headquarters meeting room wall paper detail finished their work in an A-1 manner. Ohlhausen Wirtz, Berg, Sporer and Nelson all had a hand in it. Nelson, Krone and Hodor calciminde the ceiling a sky blue, while Thormahlen let in the light by washing the windows, etc. Had some bosses, too. Boy, it's hot. Come over and look at it. Incidentally, we all starved while waiting in vain for Gene Reget's promised refreshments.

Will the wives of Gene Reget, Frank Ohlhausen and Frank Lilly please relieve them of dish-washing duty on Legion Meeting nights so as to enable these boys to arrive before the meeting is half over.

Frank Ohlhausen is still the "champ" bowler, but he'd better look to his laurels. Runners-up are improving rapidly. Still room for more on the teams.

The Legion Join Now, Buddies. Don't put it off any longer. Needy exservice men require our help this winter more than ever. We have much to do in this direction, and you know, it is an obligation that we owe. We didn't turn our backs at Chateau Thierry, Belleau Woods, St. Mihiel or the Argonne. Let's all picture again that grand push in the "mud" of France, and join hands again to help push legislation and help for our needy buddies.

BOWLING LEAGUE Several newcomers were present last week among them being Odair who was high for the evening with an average of 171. Rolison with 153 was also a first starter.

A very important meeting will be held tonight as the permanent teams will be formed at this time. If any one intends to bowl regularly and has a good excuse for being absent from this meeting get in touch with Clifton or Ohlhausen at once.

Otherwise you may be left out of the lineup.

FIRMEN BURN WEEDS Sunday morning the Midlothian Volunteers burned the weed patch from Crawford east to the "Rock", to prevent a fire at some unexpected time.

Saturday they were called to a prairie fire east of Kedzie, but found it under control.

Lack of Licenses Brings Arrest Slips from Terry

After repeated warnings, Chief of Police Terry of Midlothian on Sunday issued several arrest slips to local people. If the persons to whom they were issued purchase auto licenses before the trial date, the cases will be dropped, otherwise they must stand trial.

In the future those without tags will be arrested on sight. The same treatment will be accorded owners of dogs who have not purchased dog licenses.

Chief Terry says that he will allow just two weeks in January for everyone to have their vehicle licenses for 1931.

Victory Dance of Democrats on Saturday

"Complimentary" Discontinued in Oak Forest

With this issue all complimentary copies of the MESSENGER will be discontinued in Oak Forest. We are certain that the residents of this community have had ample opportunity to judge the worth of the paper and those who care for its policies will be willing to pay the nominal subscription price.

NEWS OF THE BREMEN TOWNSHIP REGULAR DEMOCRATIC CLUB, Inc.

The Bremen Township Regular Democratic Club, Inc. takes this opportunity of thanking its workers and the people of Bremen Township for the wonderful support evidenced by the unprecedented democratic victory experienced at the polls last Tuesday.

In a special executive meeting held at the headquarters immediately after the final poll returns on Wednesday morning the Club voted to redeem its pledge to its loyal supporters by putting into immediate operation the plans for the drive to "Make Bremen Township The Ideal Homesite of Cook County".

The final arrangements for the BIG VICTORY DANCE to be held at Kreis Hall in Midlothian, November 15th have been completed. As the proceeds of this dance are to be applied to a special Charity Fund, it is requested that information in regard to any worthy cause for the expenditure of these funds be directed to the executive secretary, Dr. Joseph J. Rein.

Plans are under consideration to establish a permanent Milk Fund for the needy children of Bremen.

A check of the number of voters brought to the polls last Tuesday by all the workers of the Democratic Party including our own in this district, places the laurel wreath on Mrs. Caroline M. Rein and George Kunkel who betwixt the twain enticed 137 erstwhile good citizens to go democratic.

A special committee headed by Dr. Rein has been appointed to investigate the various Cook County department records to gather information regarding patronage to which the people of Bremen Township are entitled but in the past have failed to secure. Especially in regard to a persistent rumor that there are seven jobs, including a clerkship in the Sanitary District accredited to Bremen Township but actually collected for by the politicians in a neighboring township.

"STIFF" FOUND; PROVES ALIVE

Motorists passing 159th and Crawford on election night reported to Constable Debring that a dead man was sitting in a car at the intersection with his lights on full.

On investigation, he was found to be nearly paralyzed with "moon". He was taken to Midlothian and Chief Terry took him back to Harvey.

Eleanor Gallagher, R. N.

I would like to call the attention of all parents who have children going to schools in Midlothian to the need of checking up daily on the personal hygiene of their children. I have been interrupted twice in the last two weeks in my regular program to go to the schools in Midlothian and routine the heads of children for vermin.

This is a part of the Mother's duty to see that her child is sent to school clean. Remember the school is a public gathering place where your child is brought in close contact with the children of others and if your child has vermin he will very surely pass them on to others.

This is why I say ALL mothers should make a daily check up, because the child from a clean home is likely to bring home these, unclean pests.

I wish I could get mothers to see what an injustice they are doing to their child when they permit him to go to school in such a neglected condition. If you have no respect for yourself or your neighbor, at least try to give your own child a square deal, and don't lessen his self respect, and the respect of his classmates for him that is bound to follow if he is labeled "unclean".

The remedy for those who have vermin in their hair is to take equal parts of olive oil and kerosene, mix well and wet the hair well with mixture; bind up in a clean towel and leave on overnight. Do not bring the head near an open light or fire while this mixture is on.

In the morning wash the hair thoroughly with soap and warm water, rinse with a mixture of equal parts of vinegar and warm water, dry with a towel and fine comb, from the nape of the neck upwards, thus removing the "nits" which cling to the undersides of the hair. You will find these nits more abundant just over the ears.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In last week's issue of the MESSENGER a paragraph was added to the Carney accident story of an arrest; this referred to the man from Cicero who was shot at in Robbins. The errors in proofreading and the omissions of several personals was due to the fact that after waiting until 1:30 a. m. for all type to be set, we gave up at that hour. We hope it will not happen again.

The following was omitted from the story of the Auxiliary dance last week:

Villagers Rally To Search for Uncle Casey's Horse Car

Much to the disappointment of Uncle Casey and a horde of citizens gathered to celebrate the occasion the horsecar, donated to the village by that big hearted, or, as he puts it himself, megalomaniac statesman, failed to reach Midlothian at the scheduled time.

Dirty work by neighboring villagers was immediately suspected. No developments have been reported as yet. But Uncle Casey in a special interview said: "I hear there is a man in town called Patters the Fixer. I haven't the slightest doubt that anybody with a name like that is a gangster. Consequently I have instructed the night police force to keep a strict watch and no doubt he will be apprehended in possession of my gift to Midlothian's children."

Skating at Shedd's ponds will be perfectly safe this year; there will be no danger of the ice cracking if the fire department will pump some water into the ponds.

And with Shedd's pond almost dried up what will Clarence Zuchelkowski have to write about.

Talking about slick rackets there aint any what's half so smart as one that's being pulled off right here in Midlothian by your socialist editor though what he's socialist for I don't know unless maybe they're for beer too.

But to get back to the pint (I'd rather have a gallon) your socialist drives into—Clarke-Hulett's every night along about ten thirty and he yells at Al Clifton; "Got a mechanic around, Al I gotta have the crank case taken up or the steering knuckle is skinned or something like that." And of course there aint a mechanic around at that awful hour and so McCann says he'll leave the car till the morning and the mechanic can work on it then. But along about six fifteen this racketeer sneaks in and drives the car off and it aint there to be worked on until ten thirty at night again and Clarke Hulett's out something or other or Al Clifton's getting a rake off.

And another thing; about two months ago he got a vehicle tax tag, number 250 that he he's had stuck in his windshield and back window and every place but what it should be and last Saturday night he got Rudy Grill to screw it on to the state tag. And while he was getting ready to drive away a Democrat who hadn't gotten over Tuesday came along and looked at the tag and then he looked at the car and then he looked at the tag again and then he walked around to the side and he said to McCann: "You want $2.50, Brother?" I would n't give you a dollar for that wreck.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has been giving special attention to the welfare of the charitable, penal and educational institutions of the state. He has two things in mind—better care of the wards and a saving of the state's finances. Soon after becoming governor, he selected some competent men to visit the institutions and offer suggestions and from these suggestions he decided on a plan to bring about better conditions.

All supplies for the charitable, penal, and educational institutions are purchased by the state purchasing agent from the lowest responsible bidder.

In the plan adopted special attention is given to the keep of the supplies after they have been delivered to the institution. This work was delegated to W. W. Hoskins, efficiency examiner from the finance department, G. P. Luedke, of the department of public welfare and formerly an employee of the state auditor's office, and G. D. Mathews of the department of purchases and supplies. Fourteen institutions have installed the system outlined by these gentlemen and the fifteenth is about ready to try the plan. The fourteen institutions that have given the plan a fair trial have found it works so well that without doubt all institutions in the state will have the plan in operation as soon as the committee can arrange it. All purchases are made in large quantities in order to provide for three months supplies. A perpetual inventory has been installed so that the exact amount of supplies can be ascertained at the close of each day. Clean, well ventilated and well lighted storerooms have been provided in order to keep the supplies in healthy condition.

A storekeeper has been assigned to each storeroom and nothing can be removed from the storeroom without a requisition signed by the proper authority.

At the state penitentiary in Joliet, prisoners are keeping the records in excellent shape. Two of the prisoners handling the records are former bankers and the third is a former doctor.

When the storeroom of one institution is found to be oversupplied, the supplies are transferred to another institution needing such supplies. One of the greatest tasks from the bookkeeper's standpoint has been the actual preparing of books in which the total amount of each item on hand is entered. The perpetual inventory has one factor that is going to help to prevent an oversupply at many institutions. When the running inventory shows an oversupply at any institution the surplus is carried in red ink as inactive. This surplus is immediately reported to the director of public welfare at Springfield so that he may make a transfer to some other institution where such supplies are needed. This will prevent the danger of overstocking any of the charitable, penal or educational institutions' supply rooms. All requisitions must give the amount of supplies on hand and the amount needed to carry through the three months.

Mr. Hoskins and his assistants report excellent co-operation from the managing officers of the institutions where new plans are being installed.

Applications to take Illinois civil service examinations November 8 totaled 1,143. The numbers applying for each position are: Junior department stenographer, 545; junior typist, 303; senior typist, 201; university senior stenographer, 80; university senior typist, 14. Business colleges at Springfield were chosen by 419 as the place to take the examinations, while the others will be examined at Chicago, Quincy, Champaign, Rock Island, Peoria, East St. Louis and Carbondale. Applicants for institution stenographers, stenographer-clerks and stenographer-bookkeepers will compete at one of the eight cities November 15 and for institution bookkeepers, institution clerks, junior department clerks and university senior clerks on November 22.

Arrangements have been made for a special course of training for farm managers at state welfare institutions at the University of Illinois, according to announcement of A. C. Everingham, farm, dairy and garden consultant in the state department of public welfare. About twenty state institutions have farms and those in charge will be directed to take this instruction. The course will be given in January.

There are in Illinois at this time 1,184 state banks, 167 in Chicago and 1,017 outside, according to Auditor of Public Accounts Oscar Nelson, ranging in capital structure from $15,000 to $150,000,000 and in deposit liability from $50,000 to almost $1,000,000,000, with resources of more than $3,300,000,000.

The G. E. Hoffman Construction company, of Lincoln, has been awarded two contracts for state paving work on route 48, in DeWitt county, one being for section 123, at $99,944.43 and the other for section 124, at $157,563.08.

Former Gov. Joseph W. Fifer celebrated his ninetieth birthday October 29. He is a resident of Bloomington and was first elected to public office in 1880. His daughter, Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, is a state senator, being the only lady in Illinois who has held that position.

A letter received by the state department of public works and buildings from Luis Ernest Rivera, civil engineer of the ministry of public works, Bolivia, as spokesman for the highway officials of foreign countries who recently visited Illinois on their inspection of United States highways, says: "In no state that we have had the pleasure to visit, have we been more favorably impressed with the highways than in Illinois." Governor Emmerson visited South America some years ago as a student of road building problems to attend the Pan-American highway conference at Buenos Aires. Mr. Rivera writes: "May I be allowed to say how greatly moved we were by the glowing tribute to his excellency, the governor of Illinois, paid to the countries of South America. He spoke words of understanding and friendship which had a cordial echo in our hearts."

Tax exemption to encourage reforestation proves successful where adopted, and has gained support of forestry officials representing more than half of the 48 states, according to Lewis B. Springer, chief of the division of forestry, who attended the national conference of state foresters held recently in Washington and Oregon. Mr. Springer reported that the conference was keenly interested in Indiana's reforestation plans. Seven hundred and fifty land owners in the state have voluntarily placed their timber land, aggregating 45,000 acres, under the supervision of the state forestry department. The acreage that is being developed in accordance with state regulations is assessed at only a nominal valuation, but continues under private ownership. Most of the area being developed into growing timber, and increasing in value, is composed of woodlots on farms in various sections of the state.

The annual convention of the Illinois State Beekeepers' association will be held November 18 and 19 in St. Nicholas hotel at Springfield. Among the speakers already arranged for and their subjects are: "Co-operative Marketing," O. A. Lende, district manager of the Mountain States Honey Producers' association, Minneapolis, Minn.; "Fifty Years of Beekeeping in Calhoun County," F. X. Arnold, Deer Plain; "Honey, Its Nature and Care," Dr. R. C. J. Meyer, Hillsdale; "Honey at the State Fair," Miss Ethel VanGilder, Springfield; "What Nots of Beekeeping" and "Foulbrood Control," Father Frances Jager, St. Bonifacius, Minnesota. The American Bee Journal and Dadant & Sons, of Hamilton, will each send a speaker. The annual banquet will be held on the evening of November 18 at 6:30. C. A. Mackelden, of Jerseyville, is president of the association; V. G. Milum, of Champaign, secretary, and Elmer Kommer, of Woodhull, treasurer.

In a letter to Chairman George F. Getz, of the governor's employment and relief commission, the Illinois Coal Operators' Labor association has called attention to the 49 strikes involving 21,000 men in the coal fields during the year which it feels would not have occurred if the differences within the mine workers' organization could have been settled, and is expressing a hope that harmony may soon prevail. The letter declares that "with the restoration of harmony in the ranks of the mine workers the operators will undertake their share in the solution of the unemployment problem in Illinois to offer employment to many thousands of additional wage earners." It also says: "If the great industrial corporations and other consumers of coal in this state will at this time order for immediate shipment Illinois coal for their winter requirements, there will be no serious unemployment in the coal fields of Illinois."

Certificates of convenience and necessity were granted to several Illinois utilities last week by the Illinois commerce commission with Charles W. Hadley, chairman, presiding. One certificate was granted to the Central Illinois Public Service company to open a gas transmission main from Mattoon to Tuscola, and from Mattoon to Shelbyville and from Arcola to Arthur. Another was granted to the Public Service company of Northern Illinois to construct and operate a 33,000 volt electric transmission line in Livingston county. The North Shore Gas company received a certificate to construct and operate a gas transmission main from Gurnee to Russell, Ill., and to transact the business of a gas public utility, between the two points. A certificate was given to the Decatur bus lines to operate busses between Decatur, Boody, Blue Mound, Stonington, Willys and Taylorville over state bond issue route 48.

On the last day of the October session of the Supreme court there was filed in the office of C. W. Vail, clerk, an opinion holding that notes intended as margins on futures were in reality gambling transactions, and that W. McCabe, who gave notes of $55,000 to cover dealings, was not liable.

Fire caused by a spark from a forge caused $10,000 damage to the J. I. Case plow factory at Dixon.

In his annual proclamation regarding the observation of Armistice day on November 11, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson closed with a request that upon the stroke of eleven o'clock on the morning of that day there be a general cessation of all activities throughout the state and that citizens, with heads bared, face the east for a period of two minutes in silent tribute to the dead heroes of the World war.

Lesson for November 16

THE BELIEVING CENTURION, A GENTILE WHOSE FAITH JESUS COMMENDED

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 8:5-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Believed Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Believed Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being Fair to Other Races.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Overcoming Racial Prejudice.

I. Who the Centurion Was (v. 5).

His name is not given. His title was derived from the word meaning "a hundred." He was, therefore, officially the commander of a hundred men. "The ordinary duties of a centurion were to drill his men, inspect their arms, food, and clothing, and to command them in the camp and in the field."

II. The Centurion's Need (vv. 5, 6).

He had a very dear servant who was grievously afflicted with the palsy, and at the point of death (Luke 7:2). This slave was highly valued for his character and ability. We are not told in this account as to whether the centurion had employed doctors. In all probability they had been employed and were unable to give help. The centurion had, no doubt, heard of the wonderful power of Jesus to heal. Therefore, he came to him as the only one who could help.

III. The Centurion's Request (vv. 5, 6).

It was that Christ would come and heal his servant (Luke 7:3). From the account in Luke we learn that the centurion first sent the leaders of the Jews. Being a Gentile, he doubtless believed that he could best secure the attention and consideration of Jesus through the mediation of the Jews. The centurion was of good report among the Jews. The leaders who were sent testified to the good reputation which he bore in the community. They especially mentioned his benevolent deeds to the Jews.

IV. The Centurion's Humility (vv. 7, 8).

As Jesus was nearing the centurion's house the friends were sent to say to him that he was unworthy for him to come under his roof, but because the case of his servant was so grave, he brushed aside all difficulties and personally appealed for help. Jesus is pleased when men realize their utter helplessness and appeal to him for help.

V. The Centurion's Faith (vv. 8-10).

In spite of his unworthiness he committed his case to the Lord. He believed that if Jesus would but speak the word, his servant would be healed. It is most interesting to note his philosophy of authority. He said, "I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me, and I say to this man, 'Go,' and he goeth, and to another, 'Come,' and he cometh, and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he doeth it." He believed that disease was under control, that Christ could order it about just as he ordered his soldiers about. By faith he saw Christ as completely in authority over the most violent malady as he himself was in control over the soldiers under him. His faith was so unusual that Christ marveled at it. He did not marvel in the sense of being surprised at it, but marveled at its intelligence. His faith was based upon the true philosophy of the universe; namely, that the universe is based upon a law and Jesus Christ is the Director and Controller of that law. So greatly was Christ pleased with his faith that he declared that it exceeded anything found among the Jews, that many Gentiles would have a place in the kingdom to the exclusion of many Jews.

VI. Christ's Wonderful Power (v. 13).

He said to the centurion, "I will come and heal him" (v. 7). Note his perfect confidence in himself. He did not say, "I will come and see what I can do," but "I will heal him." He knew that all power was given unto him by the Father. He did not need to go and touch the centurion's slave, but needed only to speak the word, and it was done. He could heal from miles away as well as when in the presence of a sick person. "How wonderful is the power of the Lord Jesus Christ! Let us trust him at all times and under all circumstances."

Success in Christian Work

Our success in Christian work depends on our own spiritual life. We can never bring a soul nearer Christ than we are ourselves.—Presbyterian.

Jesus With Us

Jesus is more likely to be with us in our prayer meetings if we are quite anxious to be with Him in our social evenings.—Echoes.

Oil Is Needed

"A lamp that's going out doesn't need a match—it needs more oil.—Missionary Worker.

He Is Risen

He is risen, I am risen to him, why, then, should I cleave unto the dust?—C. H. Spurgeon.

Castoria...for CHILDREN'S ailments

ARE you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or for the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish spell, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine.

Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the formula on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

The American Red Cross in Action

A class in Life-Saving at one of the 1930 Red Cross institutes. Here are learned all the rules of water safety—protection for self and others.

Wreckage at Frost, Texas, from a 1930-model tornado. Almost as soon as the twister had roared over the horizon the Red Cross was on the job with food, clothing, medicine and organized relief.

A recent Red Cross demonstration of artificial respiration. The prone pressure method has proved its efficacy in thousands of cases of drowning, electrocution, and suffocation.

AMERICAN RED CROSS AFIELD

What does the Red Cross do? What makes its call—in the words of President Hoover—so "mandatory upon the heart of the Nation?"

The Red Cross job is big. In a single year the expenditure, community, national and international, runs to nearly $10,000,000. Often it is higher. Every day the call upon the Red Cross grows more urgent.

What do the figures show—those mute, cold statistics that tell but half the story of Service? They show:

More than 450,000 First Aid certificates have been issued; more than 300,000 individuals instructed in Life Saving.

Assistance extended in a single year to the victims of 75 disasters in 40 states.

50,000 nurses on the roll of the Red Cross; 800 nurses in public health work, 88 in itinerant activities, 1500 teaching home hygiene and care of the sick.

120,000 children and adults taught nutrition each month.

Service of the kind that is beyond the scope of Government to 30,000 disabled World War veterans and the 245,000 men of the regular Army and Navy.

10,000 families being assisted by Civilian Home Service.

7,000,000 members of the Junior Red Cross corresponding with Juniors in foreign lands, thus furthering the cause of international understanding; cheering the sick, brightening school rooms, learning ideals of service for others.

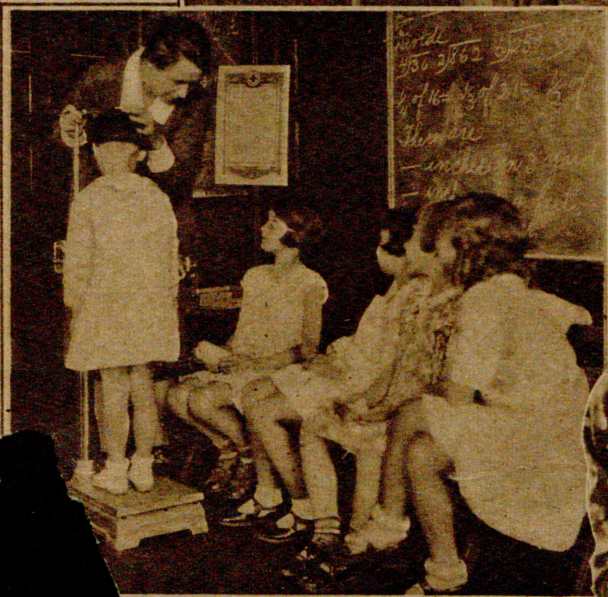

Half a million volunteer workers—exemplifying the very heart and spirit of the Red Cross—making 3,000,000 surgical dressings, 210,000 garments, 190,000 Braille pages for the fingers of the blind in twelve months.

16,200 Chapters and Branches engaged in this service program made possible by the annually-tendered support of more than 4,000,000 adult members.

Look at the pictures on this page. Multiply the incidents according to the above figures. Watch each precious membership dollar as it stretches to meet the increasing demands. Then ask yourself, "What shall MY PART be?"

All happy at the most recent of the annual parties for disabled war veterans on the White House lawn in Washington! Veterans and enlisted men of Army and Navy, whether sound or otherwise, are grateful for Red Cross service.

School girls enjoy the periodical checking of height, weight and teeth by the Red Cross public health nurse.

This little fellow is getting a running start in life, for the mother has been taught in a Red Cross class of Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick.

An Easter basket brings to a little patient in Children's Hospital, Detroit, courage to face an operation for mastoiditis. Smiles like these brighten the faces of 7,000,000 Juniors and untold thousands who are remembered by the children of the Red Cross.
